Opportunities and Challenges of The Environmental Protection Industry in China and how it affects the US keynote speaker: Dr Ping He, founding president of International Fund for China's Environment, Washington DC

China's environmental protection industry has entered a phase of rapid growth in the past few years. Among the environmental industry sectors, the solid waste treatment industry is presently at the peak of opportunity; there are opportunities for water treatment, air pollution control, more advanced de-nitration technologies in power plants, as well as advanced monitoring equipment and technology for air born particles as small as PM 2.5. Opportunities and challenges for US environmental firms lie in advanced treatment/monitoring tech, emission reduction technology, joint equipment manufacturing, and environmental management capacity building, etc.

GCCCC is proudly in co-operation with APEX Companies LLC to present Dr Ping He as the speaker for this event and share his insight and experience on the subject matter. Dr Ping He is the founding president of the International Fund for China's Environment (IFCE). He has developed cooperative relationship with international environment and conservation organizations and programs, US and Chinese governmental agencies, NGOs and the private sectors, including numerous projects in environmental NGO support and technological exchanges.
