的感受:

you the truth, I was entering this dinner with a negative attitude. I didn't want to spend my time at some stranger's house for three hours talking about edicate and eating multiple courses. And of course who wants to be with their mom on a Saturday night. Soon though my perspective was altered. On the car ride there, a good friend of my mom's, Ying Pu, described how amazing this woman was and how amazing and historical she and her house was. According to her, entering this house could just make the time fly by. This made me interested to see if these compliments were true. When we were greeted by Cynthia, I was caught offguard. She was extremely kind and made you feel welcomed instantly. She gave us a simple tour of her historical collection and from there I was hooked. I am a huge fan of history and of course she had a small collection of Winston Churchill items. We hit it off after talking about the The Battle of Britain. After all the guests arrived, we sat down, and I was definitely ready for dinner. Instead, Cynthia turned on her computer and gave us a half hour long speech on edicate. Contrary to what you're thinking, it was very educational and interesting. She linked the present day to the past and kept the lesson fun and entertaining. Then the favorite part of the night were the dishes. From the first course to the last course, my taste buds were continually on high alert, ready to experience the next flavor. Overall I did not regret a single minute that I spent at Cynthia's beautiful home. that the three hours flew by like it was nothing. I 自己做娃娃專利。 would not hesitate to chat or visit her again. This is the very reason that Cynthia and Ying Pu have teamed up: to create moments of peace and respite where guests can recharge their personal batteries in the company of both new and old friends, while exchanging thoughts and learning from each other. Cynthia and Ying Pu are especially pleased when such events are intergenerational as it helps to broaden the scope of conversation.

The topic of the program included a discussion of etiquette, which may seem to be a quaint concept of yesteryear, but is in fact the conductor which facilitates harmonious human relations on the great circuit board of life. The dinner was presented in a tradition which was handed down to America from Europe. The purpose of the tradition is to create a slower pace in an atmosphere of beauty so that the guests do not feel rushed and may relax and enjoy each other's company. Recognizing that life is fleeting, Ying Pu and Cynthia work to create programs which blend time honored traditions with our modern sensibilities to nuture our well being, inside and out. As President George Washington said
