

Case, Taipei Medical University form three-year collaboration agreement

Case Western Reserve University and Taipei Medical University formed a three-year agreement that includes student and faculty exchange programs and joint research efforts.

Case Western Reserve University and Taipei Medical University in Taiwan have formed a broad collaboration poised to include student and faculty exchange programs and joint research efforts.

The three-year agreement calls for research collaborations focused on the institutions' strengths in the areas of cancer, brain sciences, biomedical engineering, medical device and drug development, and geriatrics and long-term care. As part of the agreement, each year, $162,000 from Taipei and $10,000 from Case Western Reserve will be pumped into a new research fund, which will support research at both institutions. Awards will be determined by a joint advisory board.

"This collaboration represents yet another way that Case Western Reserve continues to advance the commitment we made to internationalization in our 2008 strategic plan," university president Barbara R. Snyder said in a statement.

"Taipei Medical University is an impressive university, and we look forward to working even more actively with their faculty and students," Snyder said. "The greater our global engagement with other top institutions of higher education, the stronger our education and research programs will be."

The agreement also calls for faculty to work together on projects that offer commercialization opportunities.

The universities started exploring ways to collaborate about two years ago and since have participated in several exchange programs. Case's engineering program and Taipei have also collaborated on a dual master's degree in biomedical engineering.

Dear Community Leader,

I want to invite you to a small, intimate round table that will focus on the issues and concerns of the Asian American and Pacific Islander (AAPI) older adults in Northeast Ohio.

2015 marks the 50th anniversary of Medicaid, Medicare and the Older Americans Act. It is also the 80th anniversary of the Social Security Act. The White House Conference on Aging (WHCOA) began in July 2014 with a national listening tour to understand the issues and concerns of older adults. The tour made a stop in Cleveland on April 27th which drew nonprofit, public and private sector leaders, community members, and others.

While the Cleveland convening brought many together, there is an opportunity for us to gather and discuss the unique challenges specific to our AAPI older adult members of the community. Language and cultural barriers persist and prevent these members from achieving optimal health and well-being?. Thus, it is important that we are able to convene in a smaller group to put forth additional set of recommendations and thoughts to the WHCOA in advance of its final national meeting scheduled sometime in July 2015.

Please join us on Wednesday, July 1st 11am - 1pm ASIA Cleveland Office (3631 Perkins Ave. Ste. 2A-W) Lunch will be provided. Please RSVP no later than June 26th. Click here to RSVP.

Sincerely yours, May Chen Founder and Executive Director

Michael Byun Emeritus Executive Director
