

Foreign student enrollment increases 10 percent in Ohio

CLEVELAND, Ohio - Almost 36,000 foreign students enrolled in Ohio's colleges in 2014, an increase of almost 60 percent since 2009, according to a new report.

That increase mirrors the growing number of foreign students attending U.S. colleges, primarily from China, India and Saudi Arabia, according to the annual Open Doors Report on International Educational Exchange published by the Institute of International Education.

About 975,000 foreign students enrolled in U.S. colleges in 2014, representing a 10 percent annual growth, the highest rate in 35 years, the report said.

Ohio has the eighth-largest foreign student enrollment with 35,761 students, according to the report released on Monday. The rank has remained unchanged for several years.

Most students came to the state from China (39.7 percent), India (15.1 percent) and Saudi Arabia (13.7 percent).

Ohio State University had 7,121 foreign students, ranking first in the state and 14th in the U.S.

The University of Cincinnati ranked second in the state with 3,695 foreign students. It was followed by Kent State University (2,863 students), the University of Toledo (2,402 students) and the University of Dayton (2,224 students).

U.S. colleges seek foreign students to bolster enrollment and their budgets, for those students generally pay full tuition and fees.

In 2009, 22,370 foreign students enrolled in percent since 2008 when there were 854 foreign students, the university said. Foreign students represent about 10 percent of students on the main campus.

In August the state launched Ohio G.R.E.A.T. - Global Reach to Engage Academic Talent, an initiative to attract more foreign college students and encourage them to stay in the state after graduating.

A goal of the new initiative is to increase the share of foreign college students in Ohio from 4.1 percent to 6 percent.

Nationally, China remains the top country of origin of foreign students, increasing by 11 percent to 304,040, the report said. India's growth, primarily at the graduate level, increased by 29.4 percent to a record high of 132,888. The two countries constitute nearly 45 percent of the total number of foreign students.

There were large numbers of increases of students from Brazil, Kuwait and Saudi Arabia, all countries whose governments offer scholarships for their students to student abroad, the report said.

The number of U.S. students studying abroad increased five percent in 2013 to 304,467 students, the most recent year available, the report said. But that represents only 10 percent of students who study abroad before graduating.

Ohio State ranks seventh nationally with 2,539 students studying abroad in 2013, the university said.

In 2014 the international education institute launched Generation Study Abroad, a national campaign with a goal of 600,000 students studying abroad by 2017.

The campaign has 600 partners including 350 U.S. colleges, international schools and education and government agencies.

Ohio's public and private colleges, the report said.

Kent State has led Ohio's universities in increasing international enrollment. More than 3,000 students enrolled this fall, a growth of 348
